

Judy Graves Wins Dog Championship To Keep Pet Puppy

BOURBON, THE CHAMP — Judy Graves gives her pup, Bourbon, a big hug after they walked away with the Grand Champion award at the Pickaway County Fair's Dog Show Sunday.

For Judy Graves and her puppy, Bourbon, winning the grand champion trophy at the Pickaway County Fair Dog Show wasn't the most important event in their lives Sunday.

For in the real life rags-to-riches saga, Judy claimed the once castoff mixed-breed dog as her own after the judging.

Bourbon and Judy performed so well as a team at the Sunday judging that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Graves, 2940 Pine Drive, Little Walnut, allowed her to keep the animal even though the family already has a pet dog.

"It was beautiful, like magic," said Judy's Bow Wow Pals 4-H Club advisor Bev Six. "I couldn't believe the way they worked together."

Mrs. Six said that while practicing for the big event, Judy and Bourbon worked well together, but, "I still saw some errors."

However, there were few errors during the judging, which also earned her a first place finish in the sub novice class for 4-Hers who show their animals for the first time.

Mrs. Six said a friend found Bourbon when he was a tiny six-week old puppy. The animal was wandering along Route 23 where it had apparently been "dumped" by its former owners. Mrs. Six, an animal over and breeder of beagles, accepted the stray from her friend, and agreed to find a home for it. However, no one wanted the tiny stray.

"Judy, who is a neighbor, came over one day and fell in love with Bourbon," Mrs. Six said, "but her parents wouldn't allow her to keep the dog because they had another pet."

However, Judy was allowed to work with the dog and later joined the Bow Wow Pals 4-H club.

Mrs. Six said that about two weeks ago she found a retired man who agreed to wait until after the dog show to take ownership, however.

But after Judy's big day, she was allowed to take the animal as a pet and the man relinquished his claim.

In other results of the Dog Show, Beth Gerhardt and her dog, Baron, claimed the reserve grand champion trophy.

Winners of the classes were:

Sub Novice — 1. Judy Graves; 2. Beth Gerhardt; 3. Beth Six; 4. Brent Sherman; 5. Cheryl Hampton; 6. Shauna Conley; 7. Lisa Carter; 8. Beth Fox; 9. John Hedrick; 10. Judy Six.

Novice A — 1. Kim Craig; 2. Marla Smith.

Novice B — 1. Marie Palm; 2. Nikki Kennedy.

Graduate Novice — 1. Brenda Six.

Midway Chatter

The Pickaway County Fair is in its third day, with the Junior Fair Swine show the big event at the Livestock Arena. Market Steers were weighed at 8:30 a.m. today in preparation for Wednesday's Beef Show, and the market lambs were weighed at 1 p.m. for Thursday's sheep show.

Home economics advanced clothing judging was held, the 4-H rate of gain winner computed in the beef show and the senior style revue is on tap tonight at 7 p.m. in the 4-H and Grange Building.

The grandstand attraction tonight is the motorcycle thrill show scheduled to get underway at 8:30 p.m.

The harness races may start a little earlier than the 4:30 p.m. scheduled time because of the grandstand show. There are 14 heats to be raced. Yesterday 12 heats were run in a little over three hours.

The mutuel handle was $11,149, the biggest yet at the fair. And the $320 payoff for a $2 win ticket on Judy Nancy in the seventh heat may have set a record for a county fair in the state. Veteran racing officials Bob Steele of Scioto Downs and Phil Mauger of Lexington could never recall a higher payoff at a fair and Steele could think of only two higher that he had ever seen at any kind of a harness racing meet where there was wagering.

By the way — there was one lucky ticket holder on Judy Nancy, and it wasn't the owner, so we were told.

The anticipated track record Monday did not materialize because of the wet track. It was in good condition following Sunday's downpour, thanks to the work of Harlow Arledge and his track maintenance crew, but it wasn't fast. Timer Alva May who had viewed the track at noon reported it was so wet then he was surprised that Arledge had it in such good condition by race time.

The Fayette County Fair was held last week and the grand champion steer there sold for a new record of $2.15 per pound to McDonald's Restaurant of Washington C. H. The reserve grand champion brought $1.55 a pound and the average price paid for 77 steers in Fayette County Junior Fair was $54 per hundred.

The schedule this evening includes the Guernsey and Jersey Open Dairy Cattle Show at the livestock arena. Wednesday the Dairy Veal Show and the Junior Fair beef show will be held in the morning. The home economics food project judging will begin at 9 a.m. and the flower show will be at noon.

The big attractions Wednesday will be the Pet Parade at 5 p.m. and the Tractor pull scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. The latter event will pace the grandstand and the infield of the harness track with spectators. Tractor pulling in the past few years

Legislation Would Ban 'Gas Guzzling' Autos

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration reportedly will not oppose legislation to ban the sale of "gas-guzzling" cars in 1980, even though the provision was not part of the President's energy package.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the proposal Monday, voting to require at least 16-mile-per-gallon performance from every 1980-model car sold in the United States and backing up the requirement with a $10,000 fine for each car that falls short.

The Senate panel acted as the House began debate on a 580-page energy bill and the President called for higher gasoline taxes and continued price controls on natural gas in a statement urging approval of his energy plan.

House leadership is hoping the bill, based largely on Carter's proposals, can be approved and sent to the Senate by Friday.

The Senate energy panel acted on a proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to increase performance requirements for cars. Under the proposal, the 16-mpg requirement will be increased by one mile a gallon each year for five years beginning in 1980.

The requirement would be 21 miles per gallon for 1985-model cars.

The $10,000 fine would apply each year.

A spokesman for Metzenbaum said Monday night the Carter administration had not indicated direct approval for the proposal. But he said, "We have had a definite statement from the administration that they would not oppose this."

The spokesman said he was optimistic that the proposal would win approval from the whole Senate, noting that Carter last week expressed renewed concern that Americans are not cutting back on their energy consumption.

The spokesman for Metzenbaum said congressional experts estimated the proposal could mean a savings of 26,000 barrels of oil a day.

Carter's energy proposals, unveiled in a speech last April 20, called for a special tax on so-called gas-guzzling cars, but no ban on their production.

The Senate panel also voted to double the fine imposed on manufacturers of automobiles that fall short of efficiency standards going into effect this fall.

Under a law passed in 1975, a company's entire line of cars must average 18 miles per gallon beginning with the 1978-model year.

If the average falls short, a company can be fined $100 a mile per car under the new proposal, instead of the existing $50 per mile per car.

Figures show new domestic cars now average 17.8 miles per gallon.

Carter's statement contained his first endorsement of a proposed nickel-a-gallon hike in the federal gasoline tax and said removal of federal price controls on natural gas would "undermine one of the basic tenets of my energy plan — fairness."

A nickel hike combined with other oil taxes in the program could add a dime to the current cost of each gallon. Each penny increase in the gasoline tax costs consumers an estimated $1 billion a year, experts say.

The current federal gasoline tax is four cents a gallon.

Ashville OKs Salary Ordinances

Three salary ordinances were enacted Monday night by members of the Ashville Council.

Members unanimously agreed to increase the salary of Police Chief Alva Boyer to $12,000 a year and to hire James Deal as patrolman at a yearly salary of $11,000.

Both ordinances, passed as emergency measures, took effect Aug. 1.

In a split 4-2 vote, members agreed to increase salaries for the mayor, council members, board of public affairs chairman, and board of public affairs members.

Salary for the mayor will be $2,250 a year, while the council president and BPA chairman will receive $20 for each meeting they attend, and council members and board members will receive $16 for each meeting they attend.

The salary ordinance for village officials will not be enacted until a new council is elected. Four members are to be chosen by voters in November.

Street Commissioner William Myers was present at the meeting to report that three alleys in the village are in need of work.

Council reviewed the state auditor's report for the audit of village books from Feb. 22, 1974, to Feb. 1, 1977. The books were found to be in good condition, and no findings for recovery or error for adjustment were reported.

Council announced plans for the pavement of Station St. about Sept. 15 in its existing location.

The existing street encroaches about 15 feet into Community Park, they said, and persons objecting to the work should file an appropriate injunction suit in Common Pleas Court.

The next village council meeting will be 7:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 15.

Members present were Mayor Max Cormany, councilmen Marvin Hicks, Richard Cook, Gary Throp, Nolo Gulick, Charles Morrison, and George Forquer, and Clerk Raymond Lindsey.

Circleville Workers OK Union

Circleville City employees voted Monday to be represented by the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees at contract negotiations with the city.

Of the 39 votes cast by secret ballot, 37 employees voted for the union representation.

Fourteen Circleville firefighters voted for the representation and 23 non-uniformed employees gave their endorsement to the union.

Two firefighters were not in favor of the representation.

Neutrals officiating at the election, which was held at the Pickaway County Family YMCA, were the Rev. Roy Heimbach, the Rev. Jack Lewis, and the Rev. Willie Haddox.

Also present at the election were Pat Nelson, vice president of Labor Relations Inc. and consultant for Circleville City Council, and Robert Todd, district representative for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

PICKAWAY PORK QUEEN — Carol Winter, second from right, was crowned Miss Pickaway County Pork Queen Monday, and Chris Boldoser was named first attendant. Miss Winter, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Winter, 5695 Ashville-Fairfield Road, Ashville, will receive a crown, trophy, banner, $50 cash, and a $25 Savings Bond and is eligible to compete in the District Pork Queen contest. She is being congratulated by Tom Boyer who assisted Sue Gibson and Judy Skidmore with the judging. Miss Boldoser, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Boldoser, 9318 Hayesville Road, Kingston, is being congratulated by Connie Drummond.

CLEVELAND (AP) — A federal judge here compared Kent State University's Blanket Hill to Pearl Harbor and the Alamo on Monday when he continued a construction delay of a gym near where National Guardsmen shot four students to death seven years ago.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas D. Lambros suggested in his ruling that national landmarks need not represent proud moments of U.S. history, witness the stature of Pearl Harbor and the Alamo. He also said that those places become historic spots in and of themselves, regardless of administrative decrees.

May 4th Coalition lawyers admitted that their appeal in federal court to halt construction of the controversial gym annex was a "last ditch effort" when Lambros issued his first temporary restraining order halting construction last Friday evening.

The judge then told the coalition — after a day-long hearing Monday — to give him a report Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. on its progress in finding federal support for having the site named a National Historic Landmark. The judge indicated he would not rule until Thursday on a request from university lawyers that he lift his temporary ban.

Terry Gilbert, a lawyer for the coalition, said a meeting would be held today with the Justice Department's community relations director and that members of Congress and other government officials would be contacted in an effort to expedite a finding by the Department of Interior about Blanket Hill's value as a historical site.

Gilbert said the big issue now boiled down to money — "whether the Department of Interior will make funds available to cover costs to the contractor of delaying the gym project."

Lambros questioned the university attorneys sharply. "I must have more than an emotional argument on behalf of a contractor that 'I am losing money,'" the judge told university lawyer Stephen T. Parisi.

When Parisi cited Ohio law to dispute coalition arguments that demonstrators had won some property rights in their two-month occupation of Blanket Hill before the university got a court order evicting them last month, Lambros told Parisi, "The question is not as simplistic as you attempt to show it in your presentation."

The judge said it appeared the Kent State board of trustees "failed to consider whether this site should be preserved. Now we have construction and nothing can be done about it."

Parisi argued that it was the events of what happened May 4, 1970 that were important, but the site was "just dirt that can come and go."

Meanwhile, a group of 11 Cleveland area families scheduled a 24-hour prayer vigil at the Blanket Hill site starting this morning to demonstrate support for the coalition.

Say Wallace To Divorce Corneilia

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace says "there's nothing" to documents which purport to be an as yet unfilled divorce petition drawn up on his behalf.

The Associated Press obtained the document Monday following a report from a Montgomery television station, WSFA-TV, that a divorce petition had been drawn up for the governor and his wife, Corneilia.

Mrs. Wallace could not be reached for comment on the documents.

The governor, through his deputy press secretary, Elvin Stanton, said only that "there's nothing to that."

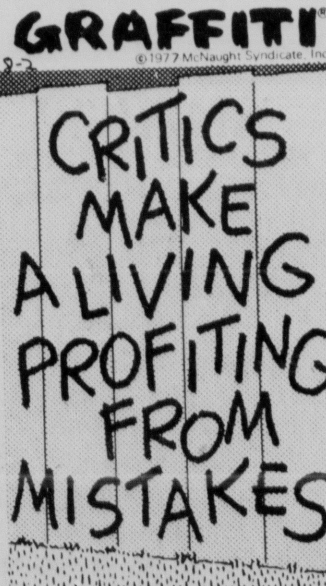

Stanton said he personally had "no knowledge of any divorce proceedings."

The document, which is unsigned and dated only July 1977, says "the husband avers there exists such a complete incompatibility of temperament that the parties can no longer live together."

"The husband further avers there has been an irretrievable breakdown of the marriage and further attempts at reconciliation are impractical or futile and not in the best interests of the parties."

Mrs. Wallace, the divorced niece of former Gov. James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, married Wallace on Jan. 4, 1971, about three years after Wallace's first wife, the late Gov. Lurleen Wallace, died of cancer.

Mrs. Wallace has two children by her first marriage and the governor has four.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence of a tightening of Federal Reserve credit policy helped push stock market prices lower again today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped more than a point in early trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts were in wide agreement that the Fed had moved in recent days to encourage short term interest rates to rise.

They also noted that traders had been unimpressed by the market's sluggish gesture at a rally on Monday.

Today's prices included RCA, down 1/4 at 29; J.P. Morgan, off 1/4 at 51 1/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, 1/4 lower at 63 3/4, and Texaco, unchanged at 30 1/4.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.74 to 891.81 after a net drop of more than 33 points last week.

Gainers outweighed losers by close to a 3-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 17.92 million shares, its lowest level in nearly four weeks, from 20.35 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .15 to 54.27.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 120.40.

Strike To Hike Import Steel Use

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — The American steel market may be flooded with foreign steel because ore stockpiles will be exhausted if the strike by Midwestern iron ore workers lasts beyond four months, industry analysts say.

"Anybody who's got steel to be delivered in the short run is going to get it and get it on time, (but) if this thing goes on for a while, the long-term effect will be devastating," said one analyst in Pittsburgh.

"If our mills are forced to shut down for lack of ore, imports will flood us because the whole world steel industry is flat on its face, and they're just looking for a market."

In the first strike in the basic steel industry since 1959, some 14,500 members of United Steelworkers locals at 15 mines and ore processing plants in Minnesota and Upper Michigan struck at midnight Sunday.

Also struck were warehouses in Carnegie, Pa., and Cleveland; a U.S. Steel cable plant and two steel plants in Worcester, Mass.; two locals in the Idaho panhandle, and a small steel mill in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mills on the East, West and Gulf coasts are accessible to imported ore, which could ease the effects of a long strike in those areas.

But in Minnesota the walkout had an immediate economic impact.

The Duluth Mesabi and Iron Range Railway Co., which transports ore for three major mining companies, laid off 500 rail workers and warned of other furloughs if the strike drags on.

The Burlington Northern Railroad said it would also reduce crews on its ore trains if the strike continues.

"The economy cannot come out unscathed," said an officer of the Minnesota Employment Services office in Duluth. Miners represent about 15 per cent of the work force on the Mesabi Range, he said, adding that there would be few temporary jobs available to the strikers.

Although the strike shut down production along the vast iron range, which accounts for 62 per cent of the nation's iron ore supply, industry spokesmen said stockpiles on hand would take care of immediate needs.

The American Iron Ore Association said U.S. mills had 42.7 million long tons of iron ore on hand in May, about 5 per cent more than a year ago. A long ton is equal to 2,240 pounds.

According to the Wall Street Journal, about 9.5 million tons of ore were consumed per month last year. At that rate, current inventories would be used up in about four months.

The striking workers vowed to stay out until some 1,250 local issues, ranging from incentive pay to safety standards, are resolved.

Both union and management signed the landmark Experimental Negotiating Agreement (ENA) in 1973, which bans nationwide strikes in favor of binding arbitration of unresolved issues.

However, local strikes are allowed under the agreement and the union claims the disputed issues at the iron ore mines are local in nature.

'Son Of Sam' Victim Dies; 6th

NEW YORK (AP) — Stacy Moskowitz — her brain irreparably damaged by a .44-caliber slug that shattered her skull — is dead, the sixth victim of the killer who calls himself "Son of Sam."

The 20-year-old Brooklyn woman was pronounced dead at 5:22 p.m. Monday, after surgeons at Kings County Hospital had labored 38 1/2 hours to save her life.

Three hours before, Chief of Detectives John Keenan had announced that 300 officers had been assigned to track down the .44-caliber killer, who has killed six and wounded seven in eight attacks over the past 369 days.

Miss Moskowitz was shot twice in the head Sunday as she and her date, Robert Violante, 20, parked in a lovers' lane under a full moon along a Brooklyn waterfront.

The last thing Violante saw in the instant between the time the first two bullets hit his date and a third slug hit his head was the face of the gunman.

Doctors say Violante may never be able to identify the murderer — he has only a 10 per cent chance ever to see again. The bullet that passed through his head behind the bridge of his nose destroyed one eye and seriously damaged the other.

Dr. William Shuchart, director of the hospital's department of neurosurgery, said Miss Moskowitz' heart had stopped "at least a half dozen times" during the day.

"She would have been a vegetable had she survived," he said.

The victim's mother, Neysa Moskowitz, said, "... She loved life too much for that."

Despite his injuries, police said Violante was able to provide a comprehensive description of the assailant.

Keenan told reporters that Violante's new information might lead to a change in the police artist's composite sketch of the killer, but admitted law officers were no closer to making an arrest.

Sunday morning marked the first time the killer had struck outside of Queens and the Bronx where police had increased their patrols. Now, police said, they have to worry that the killer may strike anywhere in this city of eight million people.

The gunman is described as a white male, 25 to 35 years old, between 5-foot-7 and 5-foot-10, stocky build with light colored hair, possibly a wig.

Don't forget. Picture taking sessions by The Herald photographers are 1 and 4 p.m. each day. The photographers are at the 4-H Extension booth located near the cattle barn.

Youngins are reminded that Wednesday is Kiddie Day at the fair. For one set price, all the rides can be enjoyed between 1 and 5 p.m. This is different from past years, which featured a reduced price for the rides.

Art, vegetable and grain premium money is now ready in the fair office at the fairgrounds coliseum. All prize winners in these categories may pick up their money any time.

Meteor Shower Pays Annual Visit Starting Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The planet Earth, on its journey around the sun, is plowing through a swarm of gravel and other space junk left behind by a comet. The result is about to be seen by earthlings everywhere.

The phenomenon is called a meteor shower, but some will see UFOs.

Romantics will see "shooting stars" in one of the most beautiful light shows nature has to offer.

Astronomers and physicists will observe the ice, gravel and dust that burn before they can touch the planet. "It's just like Old Faithful," says Dr. Kenneth Franklin, astronomer of the Hayden Planetarium here.

The rain of fiery debris — known as the Perseid Meteor Shower — becomes most visible the same time each year, from after midnight until just before dawn on August 11, 12 and 13.

It is called Perseid because the meteors, about 50 every hour, seem to be streaming from the constellation Perseus. The space debris rides along the orbit of the Temple-Swift Comet, which last passed the Earth in 1967.

The comet headed around the sun and then back into the far reaches of our solar system. If it returns at all, Temple-Swift won't be back until 2072. "It's a fairly defunct comet," says

Franklin. "It might never return."

But in previous trips around the sun, Temple-Swift left chunks of ice and gravel in its orbital path, which crosses the orbit of the Earth. Other comets have done the same thing, creating several meteor showers each year. Some are remembered for their irregular but spectacular shows of light. Others, like the Perseid, are known more for their regularity.

Franklin says observatories and planetariums frequently receive calls about UFOs directly after meteor showers.

"To the person who doesn't expect the meteor shower, it might seem scary," says Sten Odenwald, a graduate student worker at the Harvard College Observatory in Massachusetts. "... you'll see some lights flaring up and then dying, like stars exploding."

But Odenwald also observes, "It will be great for romantics, just lovely. I plan to watch the shower from Yosemite National Park." He says the best place to watch the shower is outside any city limits.

This year's Perseid promises to be a good show. There will be no moon, which means that light from the meteors will have little competition.

Hospital Gas Mixup Behind Fatalities?

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Pipes from tanks of oxygen and "laughing gas" were mixed up for six months in a nearby hospital's new emergency room, and state officials are investigating the possibility that the error killed patients.

"Several deaths may have resulted from this defect in construction," said Richard Anderson, administrator of the 141-bed Suburban General Hospital in East Norriton Township.

Hospital death and medical records are being checked to determine which patients required oxygen and how many patients, if any, died because they instead received nitrous oxide, or "laughing gas," said Alan Sommers, the hospital's public relations man.

Oxygen usually is administered to persons experiencing respiratory or cardiac difficulty. Nitrous oxide usually is used as an anesthetic or relaxant.

About 9,000 persons were treated in the emergency room while the lines were mixed. Some 300 needed oxygen and therefore may have been exposed to the wrong gas, hospital officials said.

Anderson said records show 32 deaths in the emergency room in that period, including some persons who were dead on arrival.

"At this point, they can't really put their finger on any one death and attribute it to this problem," Sommers said.

The emergency room opened last December. The mixup was discovered July 6 by an anesthesiologist administering what he thought to be oxygen to a patient, hospital officials said. The gas system was immediately disconnected, and state officials were notified.

The problem apparently lay in a built-in gas system and resulted in oxygen being fed into outlets labeled nitrous oxide, and nitrous oxide being fed into outlets labeled oxygen.

Architectural plans for the emergency room were checked by state officials, and the completed facility was also examined, said Richard Zarin, director of quality assurance for the state Health Department.

"But if something was wrong with the pipes (containing oxygen and nitrous oxide) that were covered with plaster, we wouldn't pick it up," said Zarin.

The problem was confined to the emergency room and certain outpatient areas and did not affect the main building of the osteopathic hospital, Anderson said.

The hospital has been using portable gas cylinders since the mixup was discovered. The hospital said the gas lines will not be reconnected until corrections have been certified by the state.

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence of a tightening of Federal Reserve credit policy helped push stock market prices lower again today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped more than a point in early trading.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 4-3 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts were in wide agreement that the Fed had moved in recent days to encourage short term interest rates to rise.

They also noted that traders had been unimpressed by the market's sluggish gesture at a rally on Monday.

Today's prices included RCA, down 1/4 at 29; J.P. Morgan, off 1/4 at 51 1/4; American Telephone & Telegraph, 1/2 lower at 63 1/2; and Texaco, unchanged at 30 1/2.

On Monday the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.74 to 891.81 after a net drop of more than 33 points last week.

Gainers outweighed losers by close to a 3-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume slowed to 17.92 million shares, its lowest level in nearly four weeks, from 20.35 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .15 to 54.27.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .25 at 120.40.

Strike To Hike Import Steel Use

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — The American steel market may be flooded with foreign steel because ore stockpiles will be exhausted if the strike by Midwestern iron ore workers lasts beyond four months, industry analysts say.

"Anybody who's got steel to be delivered in the short run is going to get it and get it on time, (but) if this thing goes on for awhile, the long-term effect will be devastating," said one analyst in Pittsburgh.

"If our mills are forced to shut down for lack of ore, imports will flood us because the whole world steel industry is flat on its face, and they're just looking for a market."

In the first strike in the basic steel industry since 1959, some 14,500 members of United Steelworkers locals at 15 mines and ore processing plants in Minnesota and Upper Michigan struck at midnight Sunday.

Also struck were warehouses in Carnegie, Pa., and Cleveland; a U.S. Steel cable plant and two steel plants in Worcester, Mass.; two locals in the Idaho panhandle, and a small steel mill in Buffalo, N.Y.

Mills on the East, West and Gulf coasts are accessible to imported ore, which could ease the effects of a long strike in those areas.

But in Minnesota the walkout had an immediate economic impact.

The Duluth Mesabi and Iron Range Railway Co., which transports ore for three major mining companies, laid off 500 rail workers and warned of other furloughs if the strike drags on.

The Burlington Northern Railroad said it would also reduce crews on its ore trains if the strike continues.

"The economy cannot come out unscathed," said an officer of the Minnesota Employment Services office in Duluth. Miners represent about 15 per cent of the work force on the Mesabi Range, he said, adding that there would be few temporary jobs available to the strikers.

Although the strike shut down production along the vast iron range, which accounts for 62 per cent of the nation's iron ore supply, industry spokesmen said stockpiles on hand would take care of immediate needs.

The American Iron Ore Association said U.S. mills had 42.7 million long tons of iron ore on hand in May, about 5 per cent more than a year ago. A long ton is equal to 2,240 pounds.

Hatches Are Blamed For Ship Sinking

CLEVELAND (AP) — A Coast Guard board of inquiry has blamed ineffective hatch closures for the sinking of the ore-carrier Edmund Fitzgerald, which disappeared in a Lake Superior storm Nov. 10, 1975.

A total of 29 crewmen were lost when the lake freighter sank.

The Coast Guard released findings of the board of inquiry this morning, saying it appeared that "massive flooding" of the cargo hold probably resulted from "ineffective hatch closures."

The report says the freighter dived into a "wall of water" and never recovered, going straight to the bottom.

The Coast Guard board based its conclusions on hearings, studies and underwater photographic surveys of the ship which now lies under 530 feet of water near the southeastern end of Lake Superior.

Discussing the tragedy at this morning's news conference, Coast Guard Capt. J.A. Wilson said the sinking apparently happened so rapidly that no one aboard the ore

The last thing Violante saw in the instant between the time the first two bullets hit his date and a third slug hit his head was the face of the gunman.

Doctors say Violante may never be able to identify the murderer — he has only a 10 per cent chance ever to see again. The bullet that passed through his head behind the bridge of his nose destroyed one eye and seriously damaged the other.

See Little Coal Dispute Progress

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Little progress is expected in reopening the 18 Ohio mines closed by roving pickets until rank and file miners stage their protest in Washington, according to John Guzek, president of United Mine Workers District 6.

Another union leader charged the six-week strike over health benefit cuts could have been prevented.

"There are a lot of meetings going on," Guzek said Monday. But, "It doesn't look good for today at all. It seems everybody is waiting to see what happens with (UMW District) 17."

District 17 is planning a mass march in Washington, D.C., this week to protest the cuts.

Pickets from the local area shut down all North American, Meigs, Consolidated Coal and Peabody mines in eastern and southeastern Ohio, idling some 5,000 to 6,000 workers at 18 mines, Guzek said.

Meanwhile, Gene Oiler, head of United Mine Workers Local 1886, said more immediate action by UMW President Arnold Miller could have prevented the six-week-old strike over health benefit cuts.

"Miller should have taken a stand earlier," Oiler said. "He must take one quickly to unite the union stand on the matter."

The strike also has idled 44,000 miners in West Virginia and 10,000 in Kentucky.

"The only way we can expect to get our full benefits back is to stick together" when contract talks begin this fall, Oiler said.

Oiler said the dispute will hurt the contract negotiations, but the miners will not accept any cuts.

"It won't hurt them (Bituminous Coal Operators Association) to reallocate the money to the health fund," Oiler said. "They're using this to discipline the union."

has become the nation's fastest growing motor sport.

One champion bean didn't make it to the fair this year because it is still growing according to George Call, 5970 State Route 762. Anyway, he didn't know what kind of a bean it is. The seed came from New Zealand.

Don't forget. Picture taking sessions by The Herald photographers are 1 and 4 p.m. each day. The photographers are at the 4-H Extension booth located near the cattle barn.

Youngins are reminded that Wednesday is Kiddie Day at the fair. For one set price, all the rides can be enjoyed between 1 and 5 p.m. This is different from past years, which featured a reduced price for the rides.

Art, vegetable and grain premium money is now ready in the fair office at the fairgrounds coliseum. All prize winners in these categories may pick up their money any time.

Meteor Shower Pays Annual Visit Starting Thursday

NEW YORK (AP) — The planet Earth, on its journey around the sun, is plowing through a swarm of gravel and other space junk left behind by a comet. The result is about to be seen by earthlings everywhere.

The phenomenon is called a meteor shower, but some will see UFOs.

Romantics will see "shooting stars" in one of the most beautiful light shows nature has to offer.

Astronomers and physicists will observe the ice, gravel and dust that burn before they can touch the planet.

"It's just like Old Faithful," says Dr. Kenneth Franklin, astronomer of the Hayden Planetarium here.

The rain of fiery debris — known as the Perseid Meteor Shower — becomes most visible the same time each year, from after midnight until just before dawn on August 11, 12 and 13.

It is called Perseid because the meteors, about 50 every hour, seem to be streaming from the constellation Perseus. The space debris rides along the orbit of the Temple-Swift Comet, which last passed the Earth in 1967.

The comet headed around the sun and then back into the far reaches of our solar system. If it returns at all, Temple-Swift won't be back until 2072.

"It's a fairly defunct comet," says

Franklin. "It might never return."

But in previous trips around the sun, Temple-Swift left chunks of ice and gravel in its orbital path, which crosses the orbit of the Earth. Other comets have done the same thing, creating several meteor showers each year. Some are remembered for their irregular but spectacular shows of light. Others, like the Perseid, are known more for their regularity.

Franklin says observatories and planetariums frequently receive calls about UFOs directly after meteor showers.

"To the person who doesn't expect the meteor shower, it might seem scary," says Sten Odenwald, a graduate student worker at the Harvard College Observatory in Massachusetts. "... you'll see some lights flaring up and then dying, like stars exploding."

But Odenwald also observes, "It will be great for romantics, just lovely. I plan to watch the shower from Yosemite National Park." He says the best place to watch the shower is outside any city limits.

This year's Perseid promises to be a good show. There will be no moon, which means that light from the meteors will have little competition.

Hospital Gas Mixup Behind Fatalities?

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Pipes from tanks of oxygen and "laughing gas" were mixed up for six months in a nearby hospital's new emergency room, and state officials are investigating the possibility that the error killed patients.

"Several deaths may have resulted from this defect in construction," said Richard Anderson, administrator of the 141-bed Suburban General Hospital in East Norritown Township.

Hospital death and medical records are being checked to determine which patients required oxygen and how many patients, if any, died because they instead received nitrous oxide, or "laughing gas," said Alan Sommers, the hospital's public relations man.

Oxygen usually is administered to persons experiencing respiratory or cardiac difficulty. Nitrous oxide usually is used as an anesthetic or relaxant.

About 9,000 persons were treated in the emergency room while the lines were mixed. Some 300 needed oxygen and therefore may have been exposed to the wrong gas, hospital officials said.

Anderson said records show 32 deaths in the emergency room in that period, including some persons who were dead on arrival.

"At this point, they can't really put their finger on any one death and attribute it to this problem," Sommers said.

The emergency room opened last December. The mixup was discovered July 6 by an anesthesiologist administering what he thought to be oxygen to a patient, hospital officials said. The gas system was immediately disconnected, and state officials were notified.

The problem apparently lay in a built-in gas system and resulted in oxygen being fed into outlets labeled nitrous oxide, and nitrous oxide being fed into outlets labeled oxygen.

Architectural plans for the emergency room were checked by state officials, and the completed facility was also examined, said Richard Zarin, director of quality assurance for the state Health Department.

"But if something was wrong with the pipes (containing oxygen and nitrous oxide) that were covered with plaster, we wouldn't pick it up," said Zarin.

The problem was confined to the emergency room and certain outpatient areas and did not affect the main building of the osteopathic hospital, Anderson said.

The hospital has been using portable gas cylinders since the mixup was discovered. The hospital said the gas lines will not be reconnected until corrections have been certified by the state.

Storms Hit East, West, Gulf Coast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms accompanied by high winds, heavy rains and hail and at least one tornado were reported early today in areas ranging from the east to the west coasts and down to the Gulf Coast.

Thunderstorms continued in parts of the Atlantic Coast and in the central and eastern Gulf Coast areas along a cold front. Thunderstorms were reported in the upper Mississippi Valley and the Central Plains, while isolated thunderstorms dotted parts of California and southern Oregon. But rainfall was negligible.

A tornado was reported near Lacrosse, Kans., while large hail fell at Dighton. Heavy rains hit parts of South Carolina with flash floods reported in metropolitan Columbia.

Overnight lows in the northern Great Lakes area and in the higher elevations of the northern and central Rockies dipped into the 40s.

But the weather continued warm along the Gulf Coast, with 70-degree readings common, and in the interior valleys of the Pacific Coast states and the Plateau region, where temperatures were in the 70s and 80s. Highs in the desert southwest remained in the 90s early today, while readings in the 50s and 60s dominated most other areas of the country.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 97 degrees at Needles, Calif. 43 at Hibbing, Minn.

Sportsmanship Trophy Goes To 4-H Horse Club Member

COVETED TROPHY — The Russ Ervin Sportsmanship Trophy is shown beside this year's presenter, Gabriel Shane Carpenter. The trophy will be awarded Friday.

One of the most coveted trophies presented at the Pickaway County Fair each year is the Russ Ervin Sportsmanship Trophy earned by a member of a horse club. The uniqueness of receiving this trophy is that you don't have to be a "winner" to receive it. The 4-H member doesn't have to have a purebred, well-trained horse or pony nor do they have to have a fancy expensive outfit to wear. In fact, their 4-H grade may not necessarily be an A.

The winner of this very special award is nominated by the members and advisors of their club because of the nominee's all-out effort, enthusiasm, and genuine interest and enjoyment of their project and club. A name is submitted by each horse club. The names are put in a hat and one drawn out. Each person having their name submitted should feel great pleasure and pride because they have earned the respect of their advisors and fellow club members. A judge in the ring will only see them for a few minutes and their performance at that time, whereas their advisors and club members will have worked with them for a whole year or more.

The trophies and awards given in the show ring are very important and richly deserved. As the number of participants increases each year, the competition becomes more fervent, the riding clothes and tack fancier and more expensive and the quality of the horses and ponies rises in trying to meet the competition. That's why it's kind of nice to know there's still an award that the so called "little guy" can have a chance at.

The Sportsmanship trophy is given in memory of Russ Ervin by his family because Russ had experienced all the ups and downs that go into being a 4-H member. He had nine years as a horse club member before his death in 1971. He tried everything from an over-weight old "grade" pony that wouldn't stay in the ring to a well trained quarter horse named Henry, Russ had raised from a colt. He had everything from the heartbreak of not even placing, to the joy of being in first place and then losing the coveted chance to be State Fair Representative when his horse went lame. The fair was his vacation as he and buddy Dave Burgoon stayed to keep an eye on everyone's horses. They cleaned the stalls and if some of the cleanings happened to fill a friends boot or someones horse turned up in a stall two barns over, it was all, of course, purely and innocently by accident. They worked, they learned and they had fun.

Past recipients of the Russ Ervin Sportsmanship Trophy are: Steve Johnson - 1971, Kevin Archer - 1972, Dandee Seymour - 1973, Dave Burgoon - 1974, Tammy Crabtree - 1974, and Diana Adkinson - 1976.

The name is drawn and the trophy presented each year by one of Russell's sisters or brothers. This year, however there's a new face on the scene and his nephew Gabriel Shane Carpenter will be doing the honors. He will be one year old on August 18 and is the son of Tim and Suzi (Ervin) Carpenter.

DOUBLE WINNER — Emilie Caldwell, 18, won first place trophies for her projects in Photography and Writing and Reporting for Teens. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John S. Caldwell, 17950 State Route 104, and is a member of the Newspaper 4-H Club and the Deercreek Busy Bees 4-H Club.

A Page Of Opinion

Johnstown's Example

Two major urban disasters and the way they were handled ought to give many people pause for reflection. When the power failed in New York City and thousands of looters and vandals took to the streets, city officials obviously were unprepared.

Lacking tough orders from their superiors, police handled the situation as best they could—which in many instances consisted of chasing looters away from their prey.

Of tens of thousands involved in the crime spree, more than three thousand were arrested, many were injured—including a number of police officers, and hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and theft resulted.

In Johnstown, Pa., the major calamity came in the form of a flood. But no sooner had the waters begun to recede than the vultures began to descend. The mayor ordered police to patrol the business district with instructions to shoot looters on sight.

Immediately, the looting stopped. No one was shot or otherwise injured and crime by humans did not add appreciably to nature's toll. Two ways of handling jackals who prey on helpless victims under the most tragic circumstances. One worked, the other did not.

Sin And Guilt Are Gone

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Everyone, from President Carter down, still broods about the causes and effects of the mass looting which followed New York City's blackout — and everyone has different ideas on what should be done about it. The President finds the root of the problem in urban decay, and favors providing more jobs for inner city residents to keep them out of trouble, a solution with which no one would argue; Mayor Abraham Beame wants the looters punished "to the full extent of the law," another popular political idea whose time no doubt has come.

But making the punishment fit the crime, an almost impossible gesture given the state of our court and prison system, would in fact transform the looters of New York City into whipping boys for a society which has lost all concept, it seems, of right and wrong. Nobody will admit guilt anymore.

Consolidated Edison says it was an "act of God" that caused the disaster; and declines any blame for its results. The looters feel no guilt — they were just taking what was coming to them, since they'd been poor and oppressed for so long.

"When no one is guilty," the dean of psychiatry, Dr. Karl Menninger has said, "we (as a society) sink to despairing helplessness."

Dr. Menninger a few years ago wrote a book titled, "Whatever Became of Sin?" and it turns up the current dilemma. "Sin" has become an archaic word. Webster still puts it in the dictionary (sin: "transgression of the law of God; moral failure"), but people don't use the word any more. It's ironic. We sin more, from top to bottom, but we don't mention it. "The word," says Menninger, "just went away."

We have a similar disappearing act for the word "hell." People still throw the word into conversation, as in "What hell," or "America's going to hell." But it's only a cliché, rather than a reference to an area which in other times represented a threat which kept God-fearing Americans from committing socially-unacceptable acts.

"We have to find a new moral corrective besides Hell," the late Methodist minister Dr. Ralph Sockman wrote in an essay nearly 40 years ago. "People aren't worried about Hell or sin any more." And when Hell vanished, and there was no substitute, then sin — once considered a taboo transgression against one's fellow men — ceased to disturb anyone greatly. We have broken so far from the puritan origins of our land that moral strictures no longer impress us. The violation of moral principles is accepted procedure; only the breaking of man-made laws causes us to become indignant. And even they are so prevalent that we shudder only if we are the victims, or they are so heinous we cannot overlook them.

Dr. Menninger, in his book, asks: "Is no one any longer guilty of anything?"

Guilty perhaps of a sin that could be repented and repaired or atoned for? Is it only that someone may be stupid or sick or criminal — or asleep? Wrong things are being done, we know; is no one responsible, no one answerable for these acts?"

The obsolescence of the concept of sin, he feels, "may be a clue to fundamental changes in the moral philosophy of our civilization."

He traces how we lost the word. It began when the dealing with adult misbehavior was increasingly taken on by the state. Much of it became labeled "crime" and was proscribed by law. The church took over such "sins" as anger, greed, pride, sloth, envy and lust, and "intimate, wrongful choice of action."

Along came progress, both for the church and for the people. "The vanishing of sin has really been a disappearance of harsh reprisal, a softening of human compassion. Designating something as sinful began to disappear when it became too expensive in terms of the current standards of comfort. Instead of reducing the penalty (for sinning), people merely negated the sin."

Then came another comforting concept: much criminal behavior began to be looked upon as psychological sickness. Psychology found a way to look with understanding on wrong doing. After that, "sin was no longer a topic of conversation, debate, accusation and public remorse. It became a word of mild disapproval, less and less applied, or merely a jocular word."

With sin vanishing, "notions of guilt, which formerly served as some restraint on aggression, became eroded."

So we have increasing immorality and unethical behavior. And those who commit it feel no guilt. And those who know of it are not outraged.

Dr. Menninger believed that a return of the concept of moral sin "is the only hopeful view."

How to accomplish that return is the problem. It might be helpful to have rain for 40 days and 40 nights...

Gilligan Keeps Busy With Aid Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ohio Governor John J. Gilligan's new job may not seem as exciting as being chief executive of a state, but he still has plenty to do in leading the nation's foreign aid agency.

The new administrator of the Agency for International Development arrives at his office in the State Department complex about 8 a.m. and is usually there until around 7 p.m.

Gilligan, a Democrat, is paid $57,500 to administer the agency which has shrunk from 16,000 employees in 1969 to its present 6,000. It has suffered a similar decline in prestige since disclosures that it was used as a front for Central Intelligence Agency agents.

"What I found when I came here was an agency that was pretty well disorganized, demoralized and felt itself abused, misunderstood, unwanted and unloved," Gilligan said.

The 56-year-old ex-governor said he is trying "to shake out and shape up" the agency.

Despite the cutbacks, the agency still has an annual budget of $3.46 billion per year. Gilligan said his goal is to develop a long-term, sensible foreign assistance program to help needy countries. AID provides nonmilitary assistance to 49 countries.

Gilligan said that under the Nixon and Ford administrations foreign aid was a weapon used to reward friends and punish enemies.

"I think it's fair to say that (former Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger regarded the world as an arena of power politics and that these less developed nations were essentially pawns," Gilligan said. "The big players operated by simply moving these pawns around the board."

The State Department, fearing a kidnapping attempt, changed all the locks on the doors of his house on Capitol Hill but Gilligan vetoed its plan to install a $6,000 burglar alarm.

Gilligan has traveled to Europe, the Middle East and Africa without a body guard and his daring attitude worries his staff. They fear not only for their boss but also for the classified materials, some relating to military defense, that he frequently carries.

"I eat too much to be kidnapped," Gilligan joked. "They wouldn't enjoy holding me hostage."

Lately Gilligan has been staying in Washington working on an assignment by President Carter to conduct a review of all U.S. Foreign assistance by September.

Poles Win Alamo Fight

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The universal problem of parking restrictions almost ruined a visit to the Alamo by three men who had driven halfway around the world to see the Texas shrine.

But police in this South Texas city relented Sunday, tore up the parking tickets and ordered away the tow trucks that had been called to haul away the trio's two cars.

"I guess we wouldn't order anyone extradited from Poland for two parking tickets," a policeman said after a reporter had intervened on behalf of the three men who said they left Krakow, Poland, last August to drive around the world.

Andrzej Mokrzycki, 28, the only one who spoke English, said the group had wanted especially to see the Himalayas and the Alamo when they embarked on their trip, sponsored by a car company.

"We didn't know you couldn't park here," Mokrzycki said as he stood with his friends in front of the Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

School Busing Plan Delay Seen

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Implementation of a court-ordered cross-district busing plan here likely will be delayed beyond the start of fall classes, pending its review by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

A decision is expected soon on U.S. District Court Judge S. Hugh Dillin's order to bus 9,555 black pupils from Indianapolis public schools to eight predominantly white suburban school districts. The 7th Circuit, which had already upheld the desegregation plan, was ordered to review it by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The appeals court was told to consider the busing plan in light of two Supreme Court decisions on the issue of discriminatory intent.

LAFF - A - DAY

"What wine goes well with leftovers?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I find in the practice of medicine that both my patients and I fall into a serious error. It is too rare that we talk about their occupations and inquire into the possibility that their work may be a factor in the production of the symptoms they complain about.

A wise physician, Dr. Leon J. Warshaw, recently quoted Sherlock Holmes who said, "On meeting a fellow mortal, learn at a glance to distinguish the history of the man and the trade or profession to which he belongs... By a man's fingernails, by his coat sleeves, by his boots, by his trouser-knees, by the callouses of his forefinger and thumb, by his expression, by each of these things a man's calling is plainly revealed."

Physicians can get many subtle, but important clues that may help solve some of their more complicated cases by learning more about a man's occupation.

It's important for the doctor to obtain from the patient details about the kind of work he does, and the environment in which it is done.

A great many people work around chemicals, fumes, and other noxious agents which, after a long period of time, may cause signs and symptoms that can be confusing.

Occasionally, it may be necessary to advise against returning to a particular job because the total working environment may be hazardous to some people.

Fortunately, most large industries today have medical directors who carefully screen workers from obvious hazards. They set up protective devices which reduce injury and illness.

Dr. Warshaw, who is a member of the American Occupational Medicine Association, said, "Learning about your patient's work, the environment in which he does it, and his attitude towards it will help doctors treat the patient as a total human being."

Should people who have hiatus hernia avoid any particular foods?

Miss S.S., N.Y.

Dear Miss S.:

Hiatus hernia, or diaphragmatic hernia, is a weakening in the walls of the esophagus, the tube through which food passes from the mouth to the stomach.

Not all such hernias are alike, and, therefore diets will vary to some extent. Generally, the most important aspect of diet is not to overload the stomach. Small meals, taken more frequently, are usually recommended for the hiatus hernia patient.

Fried, fatty and spicy foods should be reduced to a minimum. Alcohol should be taken in moderation.

Wage Bill Boosted By Meany, Steinem

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Meany and Gloria Steinem have banded together in a new coalition of labor, women, civil rights and religious groups to lobby for an increase in the minimum wage.

Organized labor has long believed in strength in numbers, but when it came to lobbying its approach usually was to go it alone. No longer.

The AFL-CIO, stung by rebuffs from Congress and the White House earlier this year, is forming coalitions with some old friends in the civil rights movement, and some new ones in the women's movement and among Hispanics and youth groups.

Together, they are making extensive use of advertising and public relations to drum up grass-roots support for a higher minimum wage. They've already had an impact at the White House where they won President Carter's support, and are now focusing on Congress.

The same approach will be tried in lobbying for passage of labor law reforms, which the AFL-CIO regards as vital to its future and the organizing of nonunion workers.

The AFL-CIO and other labor groups put a great deal of effort, time and money into last fall's elections. And when a Democrat won the White House for the first time in eight years and the party captured overwhelming majorities in Congress, labor prepared to cash in its political IOUs.

At its February meetings in Miami Beach, Meany and his AFL-CIO executive council fashioned an ambitious legislative program that included, in addition to a higher minimum wage and labor law reform, a law permitting construction workers to shut down an entire job site, changes in the Hatch Act to allow partisan political activities by government employees, a law granting public employees bargaining rights and representation for farm workers.

The construction measure, called the common situs picketing bill, sailed easily through Congress last year only to be vetoed by President Gerald R. Ford.

But with even more Democrats around this year and a campaign promise by Carter to sign it, it was expected to have easier going the second time around. The Democratic leadership quickly brought it to the floor — and the House unexpectedly voted it down.

Labor was still reeling from the blow when, just the next day, Carter proposed raising the minimum wage from $2.35 an hour to $2.50, far short of the $3 sought by the AFL-CIO.

"It was a case of labor all by itself, ill-prepared and following a very poor strategic and tactical plan," said Al Zack, AFL-CIO public relations director. "The one-two blow came as a distinct shock that led us to decide we had to move quickly and much more broadly, so we went to our traditional allies and that's how the coalition got started."

While Meany was instrumental in putting together the Coalition for a Fair Minimum Wage, the AFL-CIO became a working partner and not the leader. The group includes more than 150 organizations and is headed by Clarence Mitchell, an NAACP official who also runs the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

Honeymoon Utilizes Bikes

EAST HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — George and Jean Blakeslee took a second honeymoon this year the same way they spent their first one 30 years ago. But this year they bicycled between their home in Delaware, Ohio and Connecticut on ten speed bicycles, rather than the three speed ones they used in 1947.

This month they rode from Ohio to the home of Blakeslee's sister here. After their wedding in 1947 they had ridden from Ohio to the home of a friend in Derby.

The trip in 1947 took 15 days. This time it took 20 days, plus some training trips to limber up for the journey.

They averaged 47 miles a day on their 870-mile trip this year.

They had five flat tires this trip, compared to only one in 1947. Explains Blakeslee, "The roads had a lot more junk and trash on them" this time.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Areas of northwest Ohio ravaged by tornadoes and thunderstorms June 30 will be eligible for some special property tax relief, if Gov. James A. Rhodes signs into law a bill sent him by the legislature Friday.

Normally, property owners who suffer damage as a result of weather related catastrophes must ask county auditors by July 1 to evaluate their holdings for tax assessment purposes.

The emergency legislation sent the governor Friday extends the deadline, for this year only, to Oct. 1.

A Page Of Opinion

Johnstown's Example

Two major urban disasters and the way they were handled ought to give many people pause for reflection. When the power failed in New York City and thousands of looters and vandals took to the streets, city officials obviously were unprepared.

Lacking tough orders from their superiors, police handled the situation as best they could—which in many instances consisted of chasing looters away from their prey.

Of tens of thousands involved in the crime spree, more than three thousand were arrested, many were injured—including a number of police officers, and hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and theft resulted.

In Johnstown, Pa., the major calamity came in the form of a flood. But no sooner had the waters begun to recede than the vultures began to descend. The mayor ordered police to patrol the business district with instructions to shoot looters on sight.

Immediately, the looting stopped. No one was shot or otherwise injured and crime by humans did not add appreciably to nature's toll. Two ways of handling jackals who prey on helpless victims under the most tragic circumstances. One worked, the other did not.

Sin And Guilt Are Gone

By PHYLLIS BATTELLE
NEW YORK — Everyone, from President Carter down, still broods about the causes and effects of the mass looting which followed New York City's blackout — and everyone has different ideas on what should be done about it. The President finds the root of the problem in urban decay, and favors providing more jobs for inner city residents to keep them out of trouble, a solution with which no one would argue; Mayor Abraham Beame wants the looters punished "to the full extent of the law," another popular political idea whose time no doubt has come.

But making the punishment fit the crime, an almost impossible gesture given the state of our court and prison system, would in fact transform the looters of New York City into whipping boys for a society which has lost all concept, it seems, of right and wrong. Nobody will admit guilt anymore.

Consolidated Edison says it was an "act of God" that caused the disaster; and declines any blame for its results. The looters feel no guilt — they were just taking what was coming to them, since they'd been poor and oppressed for so long.

Guilty perhaps of a sin that could be repented and repaired or atoned for? Is it only that someone may be stupid or sick or criminal — or asleep? Wrong things are being done, we know; is no one responsible, no one answerable for these acts?

The obsolescence of the concept of sin, he feels, "may be a clue to fundamental changes in the moral philosophy of our civilization."

He traces how we lost the word. It began when the dealing with adult misbehavior was increasingly taken on by the state. Much of it became labeled "crime" and was proscribed by law. The church took over such "sins" as anger, greed, pride, sloth, envy and lust, and "intimate, wrongful choice of action."

Along came progress, both for the church and for the people. "The vanishing of sin has really been a disappearance of harsh reprisal, a softening of human compassion. Designating something as sinful began to disappear when it became too expensive in terms of the current standards of comfort. Instead of reducing the penalty (for sinning), people merely negated the sin."

Then came another comforting concept: much criminal behavior began to be looked upon as psychological sickness. Psychology found a way to look with understanding on wrong doing. After that, "sin was no longer a topic of conversation, debate, accusation and public remorse. It became a word of mild disapproval, less and less applied, or merely a jocular word."

With sin vanishing, "notions of guilt, which formerly served as some restraint on aggression, became eroded."

So we have increasing immorality and unethical behavior. And those who commit it feel no guilt. And those who know of it are not outraged.

Dr. Menniger believed that a return of the concept of moral sin "is the only hopeful view."

How to accomplish that return is the problem. It might be helpful to have rain for 40 days and 40 nights...

Gilligan Keeps Busy With Aid Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Ohio Governor John J. Gilligan's new job may not seem as exciting as being chief executive of a state, but he still has plenty to do in leading the nation's foreign aid agency.

The new administrator of the Agency for International Development arrives at his office in the State Department complex about 8 a.m. and is usually there until around 7 p.m.

Gilligan, a Democrat, is paid $57,500 to administer the agency which has shrunk from 16,000 employees in 1969 to its present 6,000. It has suffered a similar decline in prestige since disclosures that it was used as a front for Central Intelligence Agency agents.

"What I found when I came here was an agency that was pretty well disorganized, demoralized and felt itself abused, misunderstood, unwanted and unloved," Gilligan said.

The 56-year-old ex-governor said he is trying "to shake out and shape up" the agency.

Despite the cutbacks, the agency still has an annual budget of $3.46 billion per year. Gilligan said his goal is to develop a long-term, sensible foreign assistance program to help needy countries. AID provides nonmilitary assistance to 49 countries.

Gilligan said that under the Nixon and Ford administrations foreign aid was a weapon used to reward friends and punish enemies.

"I think it's fair to say that (former Secretary of State Henry) Kissinger regarded the world as an arena of power politics and that these less developed nations were essentially pawns," Gilligan said. "The big players operated by simply moving these pawns around the board."

The State Department, fearing a kidnapping attempt, changed all the locks on the doors of his house on Capitol Hill but Gilligan vetoed its plan to install a $6,000 burglar alarm.

Gilligan has traveled to Europe, the Middle East and Africa without a body guard and his daring attitude worries his staff. They fear not only for their boss but also for the classified materials, some relating to military defense, that he frequently carries.

"I eat too much to be kidnapped," Gilligan joked. "They wouldn't enjoy holding me hostage."

Lately Gilligan has been staying in Washington working on an assignment by President Carter to conduct a review of all U.S. Foreign assistance by September.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The universal problem of parking restrictions almost ruined a visit to the Alamo by three men who had driven halfway around the world to see the Texas shrine.

But police in this South Texas city relented Sunday, tore up the parking tickets and ordered away the tow trucks that had been called to haul away the trio's two cars.

"I guess we wouldn't order anyone extradited from Poland for two parking tickets," a policeman said after a reporter had intervened on behalf of the three men who said they left Krakow, Poland, last August to drive around the world.

Andrzej Mokrzycki, 28, the only one who spoke English, said the group had wanted especially to see the Himalayas and the Alamo when they embarked on their trip, sponsored by a car company.

"We didn't know you couldn't park here," Mokrzycki said as he stood with his friends in front of the Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

Poles Win Alamo Fight

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Implementation of a court-ordered cross-district busing plan here likely will be delayed beyond the start of fall classes, pending its review by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago.

A decision is expected soon on U.S. District Court Judge S. Hugh Dillin's order to bus 9,555 black pupils from Indianapolis public schools to eight predominantly white suburban school districts. The 7th Circuit, which had already upheld the desegregation plan, was ordered to review it by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The appeals court was told to consider the busing plan in light of two Supreme Court decisions on the issue of discriminatory intent.

School Tax Bill Helps Scioto Valley

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Scioto Valley Local School District's new superintendent, elated at news Gov. James A. Rhodes signed a school tax bill late Friday, said his district's job now is to sell voters on a levy.

"That's tremendous," Superintendent John Martin said when told Rhodes had signed a bill permitting school districts to seek an emergency tax levy three times in a year. Scioto Valley has had levies defeated in January and May, and recently was advised by state Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson to remain closed until Oct. 21 to avoid a deficit.

"That (new law) gives us a chance," Martin said, who became superintendent only hours earlier. "Without that we would be in dire circumstances. Now have to get the levy on ballot and go out and talk to people and convince them we really need it."

Assistant Supintendent Max Way previously said the district likely would seek a levy of about 8 mills in September if the bill was signed. The Scioto board will meet tonight on the matter, Martin said.

Meanwhile, the Canton City School District on Monday became the second district in Ohio to receive permission to shorten its school year because of financial troubles.

Ferguson certified Canton would have a deficit of more than $250,000 by the end of 1977.

The auditor said Canton either could delay its opening this fall by three days to Sept. 9, or could close three additional days — December 20, 21, 22 — for Christmas.

"We can show you the least expensive way to set up a $50,000 permanent life insurance program."

"With the cost of living rising like it is, even $50,000 may not be enough in a few years. And even now, that much insurance could cost a bundle. It doesn't have to, though, if it's what we call Perma-Term Insurance. It's permanent-type insurance that can give a young family man the protection he needs, without big premiums. It's just one reason we recommend Auto-Owners Insurance to the people we serve."

Auto-Owners Insurance

Nagging May Help Overeating Husband

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my husband's health. He eats everything on his plate as fast as he can, then he starts eating off the children's plates.

He is 37 and admits to having put on "about 40" pounds in the last year, but I think it's more.

He is a physician, so he must be aware of the damage he's doing to his health. When I mention it to him, he becomes irritable and accuses me of nagging him.

He's always looking for candy or something to snack between meals, and I'm sure he must be eating at the office, too.

How can I help him without nagging him?

CONCERNED WIFE

DEAR CONCERNED: His overeating could be symptoms of a deeper emotional problem. Persuade him to see a physician even though he is one. (It's said that a doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.) And if you have to nag him, nag him. An irritable husband is better than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: It's almost time for my mom to tell me about sex. How can I tell her I already know everything?

KNOWS IT ALL

DEAR KNOW: Wait until after she tells you what she thinks you ought to know. You may not know EVERYTHING.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for setting the record straight with regard to the Equal Rights Amendment and the draft. I hope this letter can provide similar enlightenment regarding ERA and community property.

Wives are considered joint owners of property with their husbands in community-property states, namely, California, Texas, Washington, Arizona, Louisiana, Idaho, Nevada and New Mexico. (Women in all other states do not have such protection.)

Another justification for the ERA, even in some community-property states, concerns the control and management of the joint property. In some community-property states such as Louisiana, even though the wife may have joint legal ownership of the "community" property, the management of the property remains solely in the hands of the husband. This means that a husband could liquidate the joint property without his wife's consent or even her knowledge.

BIRCHBAYH

UNITED STATES SENATOR

DEAR SEN. BAYH: Thank you for a very illuminating letter.

Nagging May Help Overeating Husband

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my husband's health. He eats everything on his plate as fast as he can, then he starts eating off the children's plates.

He is 37 and admits to having put on "about 40" pounds in the last year, but I think it's more.

He is a physician, so he must be aware of the damage he's doing to his health. When I mention it to him, he becomes irritable and accuses me of nagging him.

He's always looking for candy or something to snack between meals, and I'm sure he must be eating at the office, too.

How can I help him without nagging him?

CONCERNED WIFE
DEAR CONCERNED: His overeating could be symptoms of a deeper emotional problem. Persuade him to see a physician even though he is one. (It's said that a doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.) And if you have to nag him, nag him. An irritable husband is better than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: It's almost time for my mom to tell me about sex. How can I tell her I already know everything?

KNOWS IT ALL
DEAR KNOW: Wait until after she tells you what she thinks you ought to know. You may not know EVERYTHING.

JOHN AND FRIEND — John Schein, summer 4-H program assistant at the Pickaway County Agricultural Extension office, takes a break in the cattle barn Sunday to talk with Vicki Cottrill.

School Tax Bill Helps Scioto Valley

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Scioto Valley Local School District's new superintendent, elated at news Gov. James A. Rhodes signed a school tax bill late Friday, said his district's job now is to sell voters on a levy.

"That's tremendous," Superintendent John Martin said when told Rhodes had signed a bill permitting school districts to seek an emergency tax levy three times in a year. Scioto Valley has had levies defeated in January and May, and recently was advised by state Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson to remain closed until Oct. 21 to avoid a deficit.

"That (new law) gives us a chance," Martin said, who became superintendent only hours earlier. "Without that we would be in dire circumstances. Now have to get the levy on ballot and go out and talk to people and convince them we really need it." Assistant Superintendent Max Way previously said the district likely would seek a levy of about 8 mills in September if the bill was signed. The Scioto board will meet tonight on the matter, Martin said.

Meanwhile, the Canton City School District on Monday became the second district in Ohio to receive permission to shorten its school year because of financial troubles.

Ferguson certified Canton would have a deficit of more than $250,000 by the end of 1977.

The auditor said Canton either could delay its opening this fall by three days to Sept. 9, or could close three additional days — December 20, 21, 22 — for Christmas.

The choice left Canton school officials in a quandary.

"We can show you the least expensive way to set up a $50,000 permanent life insurance program."

"With the cost of living rising like it is, even $50,000 may not be enough in a few years. And even now, that much insurance could cost a bundle."

"It doesn't have to, though, if it's what we call Perma-Term Insurance. It's permanent-type insurance that can give a young family man the protection he needs, without big premiums."

"It's just one reason we recommend Auto-Owners Insurance to the people we serve."

Auto-Owners Insurance
is for life insurance, too.

HEALTH INSPECTION — Bob Kramer, Pickaway County Health Department sanitarian, was making his rounds at the Pickaway County Fair Monday to check on food preparation and storage standards of the many food booths on the midway.

Want Feds Out Of Water Plans

CINCINNATI (AP) — A panel gathering testimony to formulate a national water resource policy has received a strong declaration that the federal government should stay out of most water resource projects and responsibility should be left on the state and local levels.

The governors of Indiana and Ohio sent representatives Monday to the opening session of the two-day hearing before a special federal panel and their messages were similar.

"I suggest the first step in an effective national water program is to decentralize management to the state and local levels," said Robert W. Teater, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Teater represented Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes at the hearing, which is one of nine being held around the country.

Input from the hearings, which were suggested by President Carter, will serve as one basis for final alternatives and recommendations on a national water policy. The president is expected to announce his final decision on a national water resources policy later this year.

Teater criticized the federal government's role in many intrastate water projects which he said could be better handled on a state or local level.

"The federal government has backed itself into water management, leaving behind a trail of foggy policies, multiple water agencies, and overlapping responsibilities," Teater said.

The Ohio official urged initiation of a block grant funding program which he said would enable states to pass through funds to communities to meet priority needs.

The federal government might still be useful in some areas, Teater said, such as basin commissions.

William J. Andrews, deputy director of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources also was critical of the federal government's current role.

"We find it difficult to believe that the federal government is now doing very much in water resources planning, development or management that some other level of government could not do, with one vital exception

— money," said Andrews, who was representing Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen.

The Indiana official told the panel he had "grave reservations" about their task of examining options in a few short months.

Vernon M. Beard, from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, also expressed concern about the short time available for public input.

He said a policy to assure efficient water use was "over due and desirable," but he warned against arbitrary federal controls and sanctions.

Many states would resist a model water program involuntarily adopted, he said.

Before it concludes its business, the panel is scheduled to hear testimony from at least 45 persons who represent a variety of groups.

They are also expected to receive additional oral or written testimony on representatives of the governors of Illinois, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Thieves Fail To Open Two Post Safes

Thieves committed $300 damage to a safe in the Orient Post Office but couldn't force open it or the safe in the building.

Double door handles and a dial face were taken off a Mosler 1957 safe, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon, and a hacksaw was used to cut through one of the door hinges.

Thieves also tried to pry the door and dial face off a Schwab safe in the post office but were likewise unsuccessful.

The incident occurred after 12 noon Saturday, and Postmaster Robert Prindle discovered the damage shortly before 7 a.m. Monday.

Entry was gained to the building by crawling through a window on the south side, Deputy Dixon said.

Bureau of Criminal Investigation Agent Jim Hockenberry and Postal Inspector Tom Strausbaugh were summoned to the post office to assist in the investigation.

Deputy Dixon said one of the thieves apparently cut himself while attempting to saw through the hinges of the safe door. Blood was found on the floor near the safe.

Thieves took $879.59 worth of building items from a home under construction at 5767 Duvall Road, Ashville.

Robert D. Croy is owner of the home. Deputy Don Hamilton said 96 pieces of half-inch plywood and 100 pounds of nails were taken.

Want Feds Out Of Water Plans

CINCINNATI (AP) — A panel gathering testimony to formulate a national water resource policy has received a strong declaration that the federal government should stay out of most water resource projects and responsibility should be left on the state and local levels.

The governors of Indiana and Ohio sent representatives Monday to the opening session of the two-day hearing before a special federal panel and their messages were similar.

"I suggest the first step in an effective national water program is to decentralize management to the state and local levels," said Robert W. Teater, director of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources.

Teater represented Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes at the hearing, which is one of nine being held around the country. Input from the hearings, which were suggested by President Carter, will serve as one basis for final alternatives and recommendations on a national water policy. The president is expected to announce his final decision on a national water resources policy later this year.

Teater criticized the federal government's role in many intrastate water projects which he said could be better handled on a state or local level.

"The federal government has backed itself into water management, leaving behind a trail of foggy policies, multiple water agencies, and overlapping responsibilities," Teater said.

The Ohio official urged initiation of a block grant funding program which he said would enable states to pass through funds to communities to meet priority needs.

The federal government might still be useful in some areas, Teater said, such as basin commissions.

William J. Andrews, deputy director of the Indiana Department of Natural Resources also was critical of the federal government's current role.

"We find it difficult to believe that the federal government is now doing very much in water resources planning, development or management that some other level of government could not do, with one vital exception

— money," said Andrews, who was representing Indiana Gov. Otis Bowen.

The Indiana official told the panel he had "grave reservations" about their task of examining options in a few short months.

Vernon M. Beard, from the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, also expressed concern about the short time available for public input.

He said a policy to assure efficient water use was "over due and desirable," but he warned against arbitrary federal controls and sanctions.

Many states would resist a model water program involuntarily adopted, he said.

Before it concludes its business, the panel is scheduled to hear testimony from at least 45 persons who represent a variety of groups.

They are also expected to receive additional oral or written testimony on representatives of the governors of Illinois, Kentucky, and West Virginia.

Thieves Fail To Open Two Post Safes

Thieves committed $300 damage to a safe in the Orient Post Office but couldn't force open it or the safe in the building.

Double door handles and a dial face were taken off a Mosler 1957 safe, according to Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Jim Dixon, and a hacksaw was used to cut through one of the door hinges.

Thieves also tried to pry the door and dial face off a Schwab safe in the post office but were likewise unsuccessful.

The incident occurred after 12 noon Saturday, and Postmaster Robert Prindle discovered the damage shortly before 7 a.m. Monday.

Entry was gained to the building by crawling through a window on the south side, Deputy Dixon said.

Bureau of Criminal Investigation Agent Jim Hockenberry and Postal Inspector Tom Strausbaugh were summoned to the post office to assist in the investigation.

Deputy Dixon said one of the thieves apparently cut himself while attempting to saw through the hinges of the safe door. Blood was found on the floor near the safe.

Thieves took $879.59 worth of building items from a home under construction at 5767 Duvall Road, Ashville.

Robert D. Croy is owner of the home. Deputy Don Hamilton said 96 pieces of half-inch plywood and 100 pounds of nails were taken.

THE OPERATION of the Butler Kan-Sun Continuous Flow Grain Dryer is simple, yet efficient. In the drawing, (1) wet grain is loaded into the top holding bin and moves by gravity over the special roof cone into the grain columns. (2) The grain moves downward, past the plenum or heat chamber. Here, each kernel is surrounded by heated air, in a "super dry" condition, and moisture is drawn from it. (3) As the grain continues downward and passes the cooling chamber, air is drawn over the dry kernels to reduce grain temperature to a safe degree for storage. After proper cooling, the grain is moved by (4) the sweep assembly to the center discharge and (5) conveyed by auger out of the dryer. Butler Kan-Sun Batch and continuous Flow Dryers are sold and serviced by Van Camp Agri-Systems Division.

BUTLER GRAIN BINS give the owner better market control over his crops, reduce field loss, and are a wise investment for the farmer who is in business to stay. Van Camp Agri-Systems has several bins in its inventory ranging in size from 3,000 bushel units to 21,500 bushel units. Twenty more bins were received by Van Camp Agri-Systems in June.

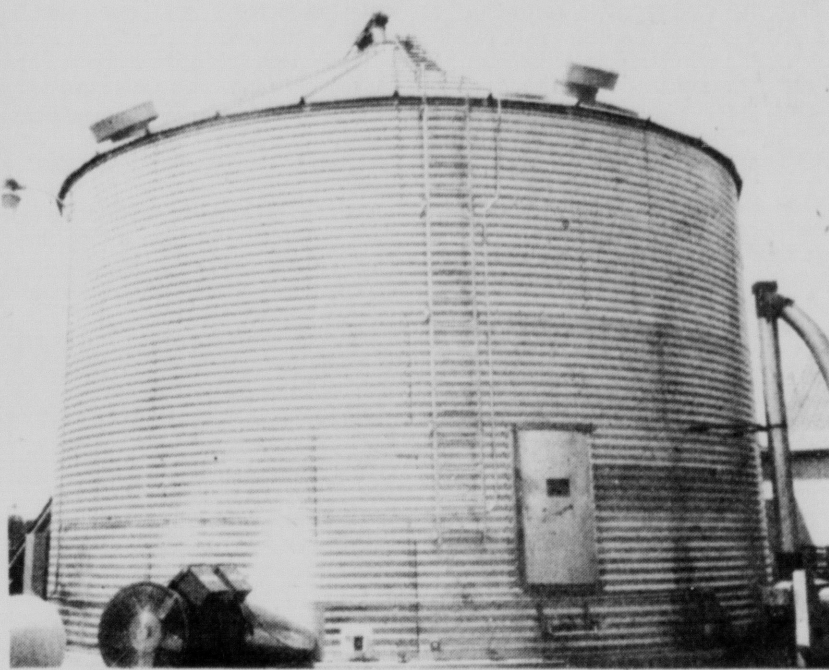

THIS FARMSTEAD I building is 48x50 feet and was just completed on the Michael Grimes Farm near Tar Hollow State Park. The building features 24 foot by 13 foot double slide doors, a walk-in door, and two roof ventilators. These buildings are available in barn red, ivy green, antique gold, and bone white colors. This particular building is ivy green with bone white doors. Contact Van Camp Agri Systems today for further details.

THIS INSTALLATION features a Wyatt DR-80 roof distributing auger that will feed all three bins. It also has an eight inch roof auger on the slope of the roof that feeds the system. This installation from Van Camp Agri Systems can be seen on the Dunlap-Bowser farm east of Williamsport.

SPECIAL FEATURES of the 3622 Butler Storage bin on the John Vanmeter farm near Piketon are a 10 inch roof auger and a three horsepower aeration fan. The bin has a capacity of 20,000 bushels and a 15 foot diameter 3,200 bushel wet holding tank.

THE MODEL 3018 Butler Store and Dry on the Don Minor farm near Whisler features an eight inch vertical truck loader. The bin has a drying capacity of approximately 9,000 bushels and features a 10-13 vane axial fan with 27 inch LP heater and double auger stirring.

Solons Try To Stop Gas Leak

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Under a bill awaiting consideration of Gov. James A. Rhodes, Ohio could realize a savings of about 40 per cent of the natural gas it now uses to heat private homes.

At least, that is the long range goal of the chief sponsor, Rep. C.J. McLin Jr., D-36 Dayton, and Sen. Ronald L. Nabakowski, D-13 Lorain, who won final approval last week in the Senate.

Rhodes' aides said he wants to study the measure.

The bill requires the Ohio Board of Building Standards, no later than next March 1, to adopt rules "relating to the conservation of energy, and establishing standards relating to the conservation of energy for all newly constructed one, two, and three-family dwellings."

It would not go into effect until 120 days after the rules were adopted, which would be July 1, 1978, if the board doesn't act until March 1. Conceivably they could be adopted earlier.

Nabakowski cites some eye opening statistics with regard to residential supplies of natural gas:

- 76 per cent of the three million private residential units in the state are heated with natural gas.
- 50 per cent of these homes are not insulated, and 25 per cent are underinsulated.

"The scary part," Nabakowski says, "is that 40 per cent of the gas allotted to private homes is wasted."

He and McLin both stressed that their legislation is not the solution to the problem, but instead represents a partial answer which can combine with other moves avoid some future problems.

In another bill, pending in the House after being approved by the upper chamber, for instance, owners of uninsulated or poorly insulated homes could obtain loans from or through

Farmers Boost Use Of Fertilizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Curb-tailments of major raw materials for fertilizers last winter only slightly hurt the over-all supply for this growing season and, once again, U.S. farmers are increasing their use of the chemical nutrients, the Agriculture Department says.

The latest report on consumption of commercial fertilizers shows 5 per cent more being used in May than a year earlier, with the July 1976-May 1977 total 7 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

In an unpublished paper, four USDA economic analysts recently said that the total chemical fertilizer supply for this year is 5 per cent greater than last year's.

Natural gas is a principal source not only for fuel in the fertilizer plants but also for the ingredients of anhydrous ammonia.

Even though supplies are tight, it is still cheaper than most alternatives for making those fertilizers, the paper said.

But the analysts said that the cut-backs early this year pulled only 750,000 tons of ammonia out of the estimated total supply this year of 11 million tons.

For the first 11 months of the "fertilizer year," use of such mixed fertilizers was up 5 per cent and consumption of primary materials — nitrogen, phosphate and potash — increased 10 per cent over the same 1975-76 period, the Crop Reporting Board said.

their utility companies to have the work done. The exact final form of that legislation remains uncertain with the legislature now in recess until Sept. 19.

Under the McLin-Nabakowski bill architectural designs of homes which did not violate rules in effect of Jan. 1, 1977, would be exempt from meeting the new energy conservation standards.

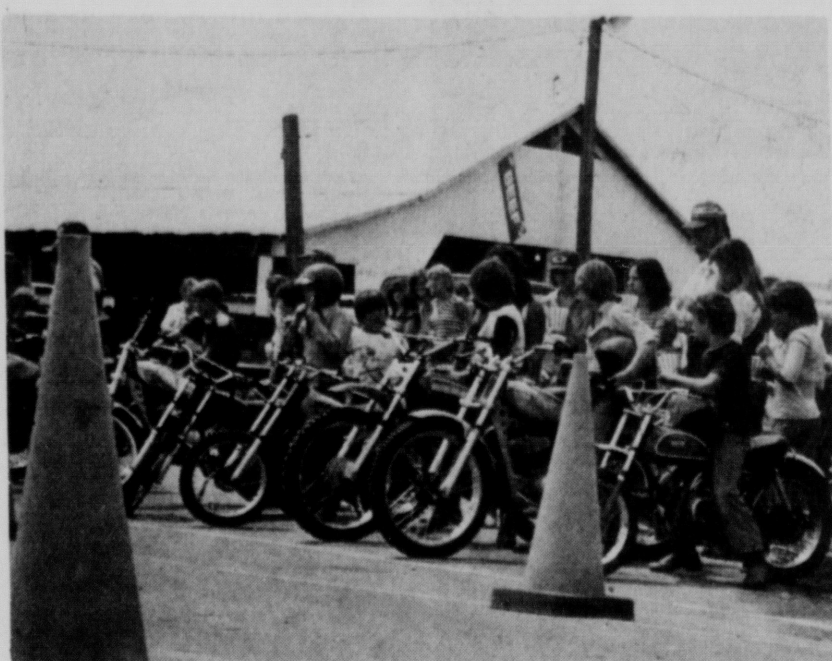

However, it sets a penalty of six months and a $1,000 fine for the builder who starts construction on any affected dwelling, after the effective date of the standards, if he does not comply.

Local building permits would require that the architectural plans include the standards. Local inspection of construction sites is optional but not mandatory under the legislation.

The penalty section provides that violators are liable in damages "and may also be required to pay reasonable attorney's fees and court costs, to any person purchasing a newly constructed dwelling after the effective date ..."

Additionally, the board would have to make periodic reviews of energy-saving technology, and could amend its standards without further legislative action.

Local building permits would require that the architectural plans include the standards. Local inspection of construction sites is optional but not mandatory under the legislation.

The penalty section provides that violators are liable in damages "and may also be required to pay reasonable attorney's fees and court costs, to any person purchasing a newly constructed dwelling after the effective date ..."

Additionally, the board would have to make periodic reviews of energy-saving technology, and could amend its standards without further legislative action.

Farmers Boost Use Of Fertilizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cur-tailments of major raw materials for fertilizers last winter only slightly hurt the over-all supply for this growing season and, once again, U.S. farmers are increasing their use of the chemical nutrients, the Agriculture Department says.

The latest report on consumption of commercial fertilizers shows 5 per cent more being used in May than a year earlier, with the July 1976-May 1977 total 7 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago.

In an unpublished paper, four USDA economic analysts recently said that the total chemical fertilizer supply for this year is 5 per cent greater than last year's.

Natural gas is a principal source not only for fuel in the fertilizer plants but also for the ingredients of anhydrous ammonia.

Even though supplies are tight, it is still cheaper than most alternatives for making those fertilizers, the paper said.

But the analysts said that the cut-backs early this year pulled only 750,000 tons of ammonia out of the estimated total supply this year of 11 million tons.

For the first 11 months of the "fertilizer year," use of such mixed fertilizers was up 5 per cent and consumption of primary materials — nitrogen, phosphate and potash — increased 10 per cent over the same 1975-76 period, the Crop Reporting Board said.

MOTORCYCLE WINNER — Steve Kaiser, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kaiser, Commercial Point, took first place in motorcycles.

CHAMPION HOBBIEIST — Sandi Jordan, 120 Walnut St., was declared the grand champion in the Hobbies and Crafts division of the Fine Arts Show for this macrame light stand and table.

Clippers Defeat Tidewater, 4-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Columbus Clippers have moved out of the International League baseball cellar and continued their recent winning ways Monday night with a 4-3 win over Tidewater.

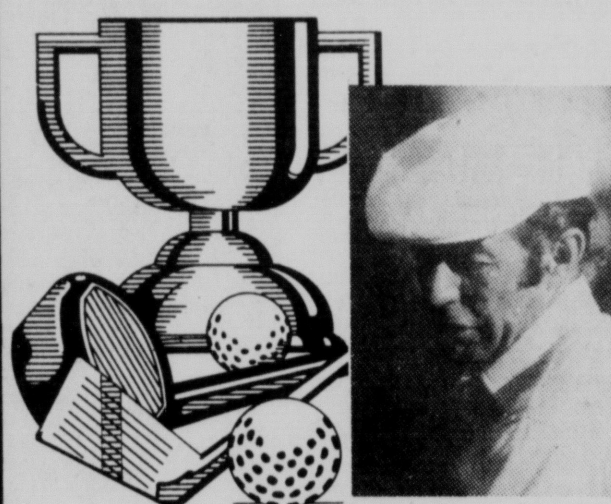

In other games Pawtucket beat Charleston 1-0, Syracuse downed Richmond 5-2 and Toledo bested Rochester 6-3.

In Norfolk, the Clippers, who have been playing well recently despite being 13½ games behind Pawtucket, sank the Tides with a four-run second inning.

The runs began with a solo homer by Harry Saferight.

Tim Jones (13-5) picked up the win for the Clippers while Lowell Palmer (2-3) took the loss.

In Charleston, the Pawtucket Red Sox dropped the Charleston Charlies into fourth place, 6½ games out with their 1-0 shutout victory.

New Day Set For Rose Parade

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Tournament of Roses Parade will be held here on Monday, Jan. 2, 1978, instead of the traditional New Year's Day, according to Harrison R. Baker Jr., president of the sponsoring Tournament of Roses Association.

This is the 13th time that the parade has not been held on Jan. 1 because the date falls on a Sunday, Baker reports. "On the Road to Happiness" will be the theme of the 89th parade.

Reds Finally Edge Cubs, 7-6

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Paul Reuschel looked toward home plate and saw George Foster in the batter's box, waving a bat that looked like a king-size war club.

"I just didn't want to give him anything to hit," said the Chicago Cub relief pitcher.

He didn't. He walked the streaking Cincinnati hitter in the tense eighth-inning situation and decided to take his chances with Dan Driessen.

It was the right move for Reuschel, but the results turned out all wrong for the Cubs. Driessen smashed a tie-breaking triple that started the Reds to a 7-6 victory Monday night.

It was no consolation for Reuschel that the Reds thought he did the proper thing in avoiding Foster. The Cincinnati left fielder had driven in four earlier runs with a pair of tworun homers, boosting his major league-leading totals to 34 homers and 102 RBI.

"If I was a pitcher, I wouldn't be

Bengals To Unveil Offensive Charge

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback Ken Anderson will be passing deeper this football season when the Cincinnati Bengals unveil a new wrinkle in their offense aimed at taking advantage of an outstanding corps of receivers.

The new look, which gives wide receivers longer pass routes, has been hailed by speedy wide receiver Isaac Curtis, the perennial All Pro, who last year caught only six touchdown passes.

"I think it'll free me up a little bit," said Curtis as the club readies for its first preseason game Saturday at Green Bay.

"Teams can't stand back there and catch us anymore," Curtis continued. "The linebackers used to be able to take away the little hooks and turns. Now a lot of our patterns go beyond the linebacker drops. Teams can't take away everything like that."

Along the Curtis, the Bengals also boast break-away speed from Billy Brooks and John McDaniel, who set a club record with nine receptions for 201 yards last year against the Oakland Raiders.

As part of the transition, running backs will be venturing a few yards further downfield before catching the football, according to Bengals coaches, while Anderson will be taking a deeper drop behind the scrimmage line before throwing the ball.

Offensive linemen are being asked to sustain their blocks a full second longer to allow receivers to penetrate the secondary.

The change has been brought about by a dissatisfaction with the way the team performed in third down situations. Last season, the Bengals ranked 12th in the National Football League in that department.

The Bengals converted 71 of 186 third down situations into first downs for a 38.2 per cent efficiency.

"Our results in third down possession situations last year needed improvements," said Boyd Dowler, Bengals quarterback-receiver coach. Dowler said the new wrinkles doesn't mean abandonment of the Bengals system.

"We're just adding a deeper dimension to things, taking a little more advantage of our outside speed and make the opposition respect us a little more," he said.

To make the transition, Dowler noted that Anderson is going to need to make a slight transition.

"We're dropping him a little deeper," Dowler said. "He has to be a little more patient than before, but he's accepted it. It's just a matter of time before it becomes a part of him."

Warner & Swasey Income Declines

CLEVELAND (AP)—Warner & Swasey Co. Monday released a report showing a small increase in net sales for the second quarter, but a drop of 5 per cent in net income for the first half of 1977.

Net sales in the second quarter of the year increased 4 per cent to $65,689,000, while net income was virtually unchanged at $2,448,000, or 69 cents per share. By comparison, 1976 second quarter figures showed net sales of $63,185,000 and net income of $2,460,000, or 70 cents per share.

For the first half of this year, net sales were $129,808,000, compared to $130,765,000 last year, while net income fell from $5,354,000, or $1.52 per share, to $5,073,000, or $1.43 per share.

pitching to Foster," said Driessen. "I'd rather pitch to me."

In other National League action, the New York Mets tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 in 12 innings; the Houston Astros edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 11 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Atlanta Braves 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants routed the Montreal Expos 9-2.

Pedro Borbon hurled 2 2-3 innings in relief of Tom Seaver to earn the victory for Cincinnati. Foster's home runs both came after two-out walks to Joe Morgan, in the first and third innings.

After Driessen's eighth-inning triple scored Foster to snap a 5-5 tie, Driessen scored on Johnny Bench's single. That turned out to be the eventual winning run after Bill Buckner hit a homer in the Chicago ninth.

Mets 8, Dodgers 7

Joel Youngblood's run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the 12th lifted New York over Los Angeles. The loss ended a five-game winning streak for the runaway leaders in the National League West.

Ron Cey drove in five runs for Los Angeles with a single, triple and homer and Steve Garvey also had a home run.

Astros 4, Pirates 3

Jose Cruz slammed Rich Gossage's first pitch into the right field seats in the bottom of the 11th to lift Houston over Pittsburgh. Mark Lemongello went the distance for Houston as the Astros beat the Pirates for only the fifth time in their last 21 games.

Gossage pitched three innings of hitless relief before yielding Cruz' 12th homer.

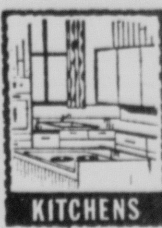

Cardinals 6, Braves 5

Jerry Mumphrey broke a tie in the sixth inning with his second run-scoring double of the game, boosting St. Louis over Atlanta. Mumphrey's first hit, in the third inning, broke a 2-2 tie that had been created by a pair of two-run homers in the first by Garry Templeton of the Cards and Jeff Burroughs of the Braves.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Willie McCovey's grand slam homer keyed a five-run third inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

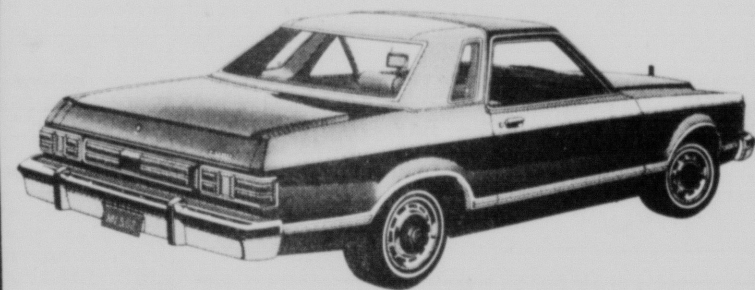

John Montefusco went the route for the Giants, giving up 10 hits and striking out 10.

Paul Reuschel looked toward home plate and saw George Foster in the batter's box, waving a bat that looked like a king-size war club.

"I just didn't want to give him anything to hit," said the Chicago Cub relief pitcher.

He didn't. He walked the streaking Cincinnati hitter in the tense eighth-inning situation and decided to take his chances with Dan Driessen.

It was the right move for Reuschel,

but the results turned out all wrong for the Cubs. Driessen smashed a tie-breaking triple that started the Reds to a 7-6 victory Monday night.

It was no consolation for Reuschel that the Reds thought he did the proper thing in avoiding Foster. The Cincinnati left fielder had driven in four earlier runs with a pair of two-run homers, boosting his major league-leading totals to 34 homers and 102 RBI.

"If I was a pitcher, I wouldn't be pitching to Foster," said Driessen. "I'd rather pitch to me."

In other National League action, the New York Mets tripped the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-7 in 12 innings; the Houston Astros edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3 in 11 innings; the St. Louis Cardinals turned back the Atlanta Braves 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants routed the Montreal Expos 9-2.

Pedro Borbon hurled 2 2-3 innings in relief of Tom Seaver to earn the victory for Cincinnati. Foster's home runs both came after two-out walks to Joe Morgan, in the first and third innings.

After Driessen's eighth-inning triple scored Foster to snap a 5-5 tie, Driessen scored on Johnny Bench's single. That turned out to be the eventual winning run after Bill Buckner hit a homer in the Chicago ninth.

Mets 8, Dodgers 7

Joel Youngblood's run-scoring pinch single in the bottom of the 12th lifted New York over Los Angeles. The loss ended a five-game winning streak for the runaway leaders in the National League West.

Ron Cey drove in five runs for Los Angeles with a single, triple and homer and Steve Garvey also had a home run.

Astros 4, Pirates 3

Jose Cruz slammed Rich Gossage's first pitch into the right field seats in the bottom of the 11th to lift Houston over Pittsburgh. Mark Lemongello went the distance for Houston as the Astros beat the Pirates for only the fifth time in their last 21 games.

Gossage pitched three innings of hitless relief before yielding Cruz' 12th homer.

Cardinals 6, Braves 5

Jerry Mumphrey broke a tie in the sixth inning with his second run-scoring double of the game, boosting St. Louis over Atlanta. Mumphrey's first hit, in the third inning, broke a 2-2 tie that had been created by a pair of two-run homers in the first by Garry Templeton of the Cards and Jeff Burroughs of the Braves.

Giants 9, Expos 2

Willie McCovey's grand slam homer keyed a five-run third inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

John Montefusco went the route for the Giants, giving up 10 hits and striking out 10.

Bengals To Unveil Offensive Charge

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback Ken Anderson will be passing deeper this football season when the Cincinnati Bengals unveil a new wrinkle in their offense aimed at taking advantage of an outstanding corps of receivers.

The new look, which gives wide receivers longer pass routes, has been hailed by speedy wide receiver Isaac Curtis, the perennial All Pro, who last year caught only six touchdown passes.

"I think it'll free me up a little bit," said Curtis as the club readies for its first preseason game Saturday at Green Bay.

"Teams can't stand back there and catch us anymore," Curtis continued. "The linebackers used to be able to take away the little hooks and turn-outs. Now a lot of our patterns go beyond the linebacker drops. Teams can't take away everything like that."

Along the Curtis, the Bengals also boast break-away speed from Billy Brooks and John McDaniel, who set a club record with nine receptions for 201 yards last year against the Oakland Raiders.

As part of the transition, running backs will be venturing a few yards further downfield before catching the football, according to Bengals coaches, while Anderson will be taking a deeper drop behind the scrimmage line before throwing the ball.

Offensive linemen are being asked to sustain their blocks a full second longer to allow receivers to penetrate the secondary.

The change has been brought about by a dissatisfaction with the way the team performed in third down situations. Last season, the Bengals ranked 12th in the National Football League in that department.

The Bengals converted 71 of 186 third down situations into first downs for a 38.2 per cent efficiency.

"Our results in third down possession situations last year needed improvements," said Boyd Dowler, Bengals quarterback-receiver coach.

Dowler said the new wrinkles doesn't mean abandonment of the Bengals system.

"We're just adding a deeper dimension to things, taking a little more advantage of our outside speed and make the opposition respect us a little more," he said.

To make the transition, Dowler noted that Anderson is going to need to make a slight transition.

"We're dropping him a little deeper," Dowler said. "He has to be a little more patient than before, but he's accepted it. It's just a matter of time before it becomes a part of him."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

FOR WEDNESDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Stellar influences beneficent. Take advantage by pressing on toward worthwhile objectives. Occupational matters especially favored.
TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Don't be tricked by the bizarre. Overactivity also unwise. In all situations, look below the surface.
GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Smart thinking and adroit action — innate with you — will be the order of the day. You can do a brilliant job in most areas through well-coordinated management.
CANCER (June 22 to July 23): You will not approve of all the action about but, in your own sphere, you can manage astutely and maintain equilibrium generally. Shun excitement.
LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Mixed influences will bring some advantages, some disadvantages. Study all the factors involved in any situation before making decisions.
VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): It may take longer than usual to put across your ideas, but you can accomplish much, nevertheless, and make a good impression. Be alert to the wiles of flatterers.
LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Planetary influences somewhat restrictive. It may be necessary to go over certain pending business transactions more carefully — allowing for changing circumstances.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Don't trust to guesswork nor be lax in situations which require security treatment. A better day than you may anticipate IF you are in there pitching.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your individual touch, the right word at the right moment could mean the difference between a so-so day and a top-flight one. Many opportunities for advancing your interests.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Personal relationships under something of a cloud. Don't get caught in the middle of a dispute between associates. In fact, try to stay out of involvements with others completely.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Many new interests indicated. Be ready to grasp every worthwhile cue and lead. The accomplishments of this day will be reflected in your tomorrows.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): You are not always sure how others regard you. This could interfere with the presentation of your case — or wares. A confident attitude is the answer.
YOU BORN TODAY are highly imaginative and articulate in expressing yourself — whether orally, in writing or on canvas — for you are an artist at heart and, even though you do not take up painting or some other form of creativity as a career, you most likely will, as a hobby. You would make an excellent reporter; can teach, preach or sell — for your magnetism makes you convincing always. You can follow others ably but prefer to lead. Here, however, you must curb over-aggressiveness, a tendency to domineer. Birthdate of: Rupert Brooke, Eng. poet; Tony Bennett, singer.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's one of life's little ironies that Linda Lavin grew up intending to be a singer, now plays a widow lady who dreams of being a singer, but doesn't get to sing on-camera in her series.

Miss Lavin, star of CBS' "Alice," only sings off-camera. That's her fine, husky, jazz-flavored vocalizing you hear doing the show's theme song.

The rest of the time she just goes about her business as Alice Hyatt, mother of a 12-year-old boy, waitressing in a rundown Phoenix cafe full of assorted joke-cracking characters.

"The original concept was that Alice would do some singing, play the local Ramada Inn, but concepts change," said Miss L., a veteran of Broadway musicals as well as stage and TV dramas.

What happened, she said, is that CBS "decided it probably wouldn't be a good idea to have Alice always talking about wanting to go to Hollywood to be a singer, that she shouldn't be complaining. 'It felt she should be resigned to finding stimulation from her life and job as a waitress in a diner because she has a boy to raise.'"

"They thought it (the singing dream) was too frustrating to work on, also that people don't want to sit and listen to somebody sing in a sitcom for five minutes."

"I think the idea is, when her son gets through high school, then she could pursue her dream — if we're on the air long enough."

Miss Lavin, whose series has been renewed by CBS for a second season, wasn't griping and indeed insisted she couldn't be happier with the show than she is now.

The diminutive, brown-haired actress, who sounds faintly Brooklyn but was raised in Portland, Maine, was asked if she's been doing any singing to keep her hand in.

Yep, beamed the lady who made her Broadway debut in 1965 in "It's a Bird...It's a Plane...It's Superman."

She said she's had several shots on Merv Griffin's talk-variety show — "He's been wonderful to me" — as well as musical appearances on the Mike Douglas and Dinah Shore programs.

And, she said, she did her first prime-time network program as an on-camera singer last spring on CBS' "Critics' Choice" awards show.
